

Sentence Diagramming: The Understood You

Some sentences, like commands, have a subject that is not stated but is understood by the reader or listener. This is called an understood subject or understood you. When you diagram a sentence with an understood you, place it in parentheses in the subject place.

Be quiet.

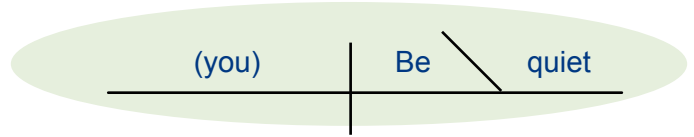

Diagram the following sentences.

1. Come here.
2. Call your mother now.
3. Look at the sunset.
4. Close the back door.
5. Watch where you are going!

Sentence Diagramming: The Understood You

Some sentences, like commands, have a subject that is not stated but is understood by the reader or listener. This is called an understood subject or understood you. When you diagram a sentence with an understood you, place it in parentheses in the subject place.

Be quiet.

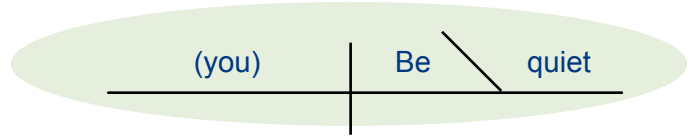

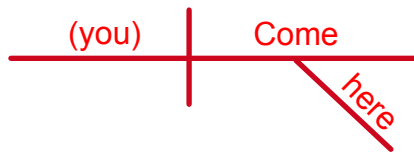

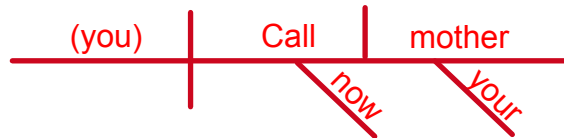

Diagram the following sentences.

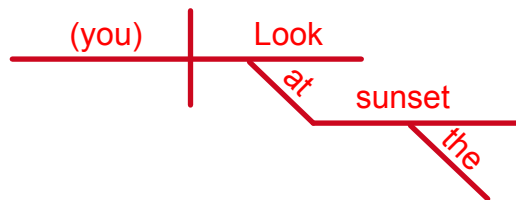

1. Come here.

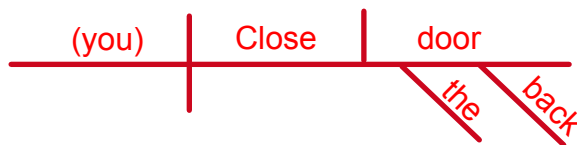

2. Call your mother now.

3. Look at the sunset.

4. Close the back door.

5. Watch where you are going!

