

Name: _____

Commonly Confused Words: Already vs. All Ready

Already and all ready sound almost alike, but their meanings are different.

Already is an adverb meaning before a specific time.

Example 1: We had already seen the movie.

All ready is a phrase meaning totally prepared.

Example 1: She was all ready to go.

Already
All ready

Choose already or all ready to complete each sentence.

1. Myra had _____ eaten dinner when she arrived at the restaurant.
2. We _____ thought that education was important.
3. If you study, you will be _____ for the test.
4. The children were _____ for school to be over.
5. The game had _____ started when we got there.
6. The city was _____ for the storm that was coming.
7. When he was _____, the conductor began the concert.
8. If you _____ knew the answer, then why did you ask?
9. The family was _____ to eat when the doorbell rang.
10. It was _____ clear that no one would complete the course.

Name: _____ Key

Commonly Confused Words: Already vs. All Ready

Already and all ready sound almost alike, but their meanings are different.

Already is an adverb meaning before a specific time.

Example 1: We had already seen the movie.

All ready is a phrase meaning totally prepared.

Example 1: She was all ready to go.

Already
All ready

Choose already or all ready to complete each sentence.

1. Myra had already eaten dinner when she arrived at the restaurant.
2. We already thought that education was important.
3. If you study, you will be all ready for the test.
4. The children were all ready for school to be over.
5. The game had already started when we got there.
6. The city was all ready for the storm that was coming.
7. When he was all ready, the conductor began the concert.
8. If you already knew the answer, then why did you ask?
9. The family was all ready to eat when the doorbell rang.
10. It was already clear that no one would complete the course.