

Verbs:

The Imperative Mood

The imperative mood is a sentence that gives a command. This mood is common in English sentences. Other verb tenses that are not in the imperative mood may express a hope, a possibility, a fact, or ask a question.

Example:

Feed the dog!

This sentence is imperative because it gives a command.

Not indicative:

I wish she would feed the dog. (hope, not a command)

She may feed the dog. (possibility, a command)

She fed the dog. (fact, not a command)

Did she feed the dog? (question, not a command)

In the blank before the sentence write IM if the verb is in the imperative mood. Write No if it is not.

_____ 1. Don't run in the halls!

_____ 2. Are you always this late?

_____ 3. Take out the garbage before you leave.

_____ 4. You might be able to do your homework without help.

_____ 5. Ian saw the train on the bridge.

_____ 6. Have you lost your keys?

_____ 7. You must return the book to the library now.

_____ 8. Tell me the truth.

_____ 9. Don't interrupt me.

_____ 10. Look where you are going.

Verbs:

The Imperative Mood

The imperative mood is a sentence that gives a command. This mood is common in English sentences. Other verb tenses that are not in the imperative mood may express a hope, a possibility, a fact, or ask a question.

Example:

Feed the dog!

This sentence is imperative because it gives a command.

Not indicative:

I wish she would feed the dog. (hope, not a command)

She may feed the dog. (possibility, a command)

She fed the dog. (fact, not a command)

Did she feed the dog? (question, not a command)

In the blank before the sentence write IM if the verb is in the imperative mood. Write No if it is not.

IM 1. Don't run in the halls!

No 2. Are you always this late?

IM 3. Take out the garbage before you leave.

No 4. You might be able to do your homework without help.

No 5. Ian saw the train on the bridge.

No 6. Have you lost your keys?

IM 7. You must return the book to the library now.

IM 8. Tell me the truth.

IM 9. Don't interrupt me.

IM 10. Look where you are going.