

Prepositional Phrases That Work as Adjectives

Some prepositional phrases work as adjectives.

Example: The dog in that yard belongs to Bill.

The phrase in that yard is a prepositional phrase that describes dog.

In each sentence below underline the prepositional phrases that act as an adjective. Circle the word or words that are modified by the prepositional phrases that act as an adjective.

1. The boy on the left answered all the questions correctly.
2. We had a parrot with purple feathers .
3. The park on Main Street was closed after dark.
4. The library shelf by the water fountain was dusty.
5. The French painting of the king hung in the museum.
6. Her father saw the parade of high school bands.
7. The birthday cake with twelve candles had white icing..
8. Our English teacher said the homework on adjectives was due.

Prepositional Phrases That Work as Adjectives

Some prepositional phrases work as adjectives.

Example: The dog in that yard belongs to Bill.

The phrase in that yard is a prepositional phrase that describes dog.

In each sentence below underline the prepositional phrases that act as an adjective. Circle the word or words that are modified by the prepositional phrases that act as an adjective.

1. The boy on the left answered all the questions correctly.
2. We had a parrot with purple feathers.
3. The park on Main Street was closed after dark.
4. The library shelf by the water fountain was dusty.
5. The French painting of the king hung in the museum.
6. Her father saw the parade of high school bands.
7. The birthday cake with twelve candles had white icing.
8. Our English teacher said the homework on adjectives was due.